

Product contamination insurance solutions

Stricter regulations, complex supply chains, and ever-changing technology mean product contamination is an unavoidable risk for companies in the food and beverage, life sciences, nutraceuticals, cosmetics, and supermarket industries, along with several others.

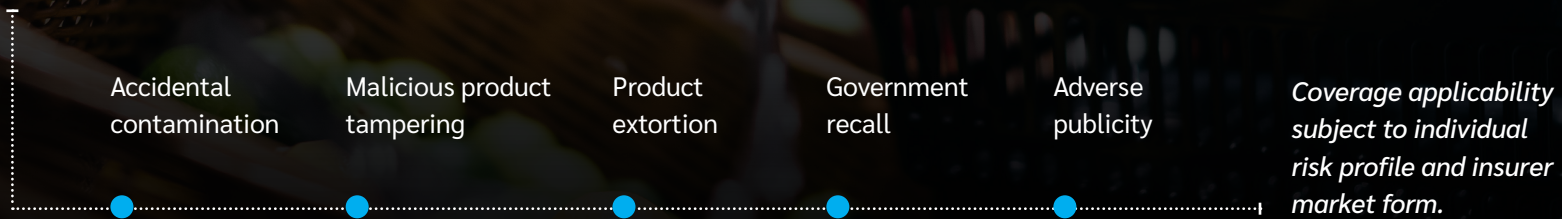

Lockton can partner with you to help you secure the right insurance coverage to meet your unique needs.

WHAT IS PRODUCT CONTAMINATION INSURANCE?

A product contamination insurance policy plays a vital role in safeguarding your business. Policies are designed to cover first-party expenses arising from multiple sources, ensuring that the financial burden of a contamination event doesn't disrupt your balance sheet.

Product contamination insurance is a comprehensive, customizable shield that can help protect your brand, protect shareholder value, and offset a number of important costs you could face following a contamination event.

What triggers product contamination insurance?
